Walking together through America!

Scouts of Peru are preparing to receive the most important youth legion of National Scout Organizations of the Interamerican Region and the World, at the 3rd Interamerican Scout Moot, from July 27th to August 5th, 2018.

The incomparable framework of the most important indigenous civilization of the American continent, able to dominate the Andes to expand through the sinuous, steep and incredible roads, known as Qapaq Ñan, made of this the Great Inca Empire. Owners of wisdom, inspired by the community work to obtain from the earth, provisions and a solid, cooperative, mystical organization with a set of values that made it great for centuries.

Today, the Incas heirs welcome us to share the richness of their culture in the capital of their Empire: Cusco.

We have been working with great enthusiasm to offer the event that the young people are expecting; full of challenges and service; a privileged space for inter-cultural exchange; a place to share your project and a unique and irreplaceable experience.

We hope that every young scout, within their own contingents, has a unique experience for his or her life. For that reason, and from now on, we welcome and cordially invite you to walk together through the roads of America.

Victor Cuestas Olivos
 General Director
 3rd. Interamerican Scout Moot Perú 2018

Location

Pampahuasi Ecological Park, part of the Rural Community of Chocco located in the province of Cusco, Peru. At 3452 m.a.s.l., is only at 5.5 km to the south of the Imperial city. Andean natural landscape is the reflection of the way of life of one of the most ancient rural communities where his people protect its cultural legacy.

8 acres of grass and natural forest will be destined for camping at the Moot.

Participants

The 3rd. Interamerican Scout Moot Scout is an event for young adult scouts between 18 and 25 years old (by the beginning of the event). Both Men and women should be members of a National Scout Organization affiliated to WOSM.

Team System

After an analysis of experiences it has been determined that the appropriate way to group the young participants is through teams of 10 young people who will be from different NSOs to improve the cultural exchange and demonstrate that the element of the Scout Method, life in small groups is valid... more than ever.

The teams will be formed 3 to 6 months before the start of the event (subject to evaluation of registrations by administrative area), through a system that will randomly set up the teams. With some basic criteria that allow these to be gender balanced and procedence. The list of team members will be published on our official website with email addresses and names on Facebook so that they could contact each other in advance.

2 months before the start of the event, each team will receive the list of activities they can choose.

The teams will be responsible to have their own members participating in their selected activities, such as the camp routes and their accordingly alimentation. Allowing spaces for learning, exchange and evaluation during the event.

Contingent Staff

Participation on the Interamerican Scout Moot is as part of a national contingent.

Each contingent will be lead by a head of contingent and such contingent staff as indicated on the following table.

International Service Team (IST)

The International Service Team is formed by volunteers which assist for the develop of the 3rd. Interamerican Scout Moot. Is formed by adults and young adults, from the participant countries. IST members must participate in MOOT as part of a national contingent.

In addition to participate in the organization and execution of the event, must be willing to go through an induction process in the work to be performed and workshop training. Some might be asked to do their traveling arrangements a few days before the inauguration and others after the closing ceremony.

Participation at IST will be assigned through an application process seeking to fit your profile with the duty you can perform best.

Program

The activities of the 3rd. Interamerican Scout Moot program will be developed within the framework of Sustainable Development Objectives, the Scouts of the World program and the educational objectives of the Youth Scout Program.

The Moot will be a privileged space for the exchange of intercultural experiences between participants and members of the community, offering the opportunity to develop collective projects, all participating in Creating a Better World.

Adventure module:

The Andean mountains is a particularly attractive scenario for practicing adventure sports such as via ferrata, zipline, mountain biking, rafting, hiking, horseback riding, climbing, among others.

Tourism module:

We will have the opportunity to visit the Sacred Valley of the Incas and know the impressive architecture built in Pisac, Ollantaytambo, Maras, Moray, Sacsayhuaman, as well as the historical monuments located in the Imperial City.

Scouts of the World - Cusco Base:

WOSM within the Scouts of the World program will have Cusco as a base to work out projects of sustainable development proposed for the Scouts of the World recognition.

The ancestral ceremonies of the Inca Empire brought to scene at the Opening and Closing ceremonies of the 3rd. Interamerican Scout Moot will give the cultural, historical and commitment framework for each participant to assume their role in Creating a Better World.

Imperial Cusco

The city of Cusco, located in the legendary Huatanay Valley, at 3,350 meters above sea level, has been inhabited since immemorial time. It is considered the oldest city of the American Continent. There was Qosqo, the “navel of the world,” the capital of Tahuantinsuyo, the Inca Empire. Already in colonial times it became the capital of the Viceroyalty of Peru, and after the independence of the country originated the first prefecture of the newborn Republic.

Nowadays, it offers its visitors a variety of natural and cultural attractions. Its excellent Andean climate makes it easy to walk through cobbled streets and get around the city in the best possible way, walking through its Plaza de Armas, the Cathedral, the Church of Triumph, la Compañía de Jesús (XVI Century, built on Ancient palace of the Inca Huayna Capac), the Churches of San Blas or La Merced, or visiting its many museums.

Near Cusco, the Sacred Valley of the Incas and Machu Picchu stand out the public interest and getting more and more tourists.

Weather

Usually the weather in Cusco is cold but not extremely, medium yearly temperature reaches 12°C, in July and August can raise up to 18°C in the morning to descent to 6°C over the night.

During the day time in the Moot the sun will shine almost all the day. On the night temperature will go down to approximately 6°C so no torrential raining should be expected during the Moot. Rainy season is from December to April.
